

MORE THAN FREE GOLD – Mineral Exploration in Canada since WWII

Many people in exploration and the mining industry are aware of Free Gold, the story of Canadian mining to 1946 by Arnold Hoffman. Now follows the sequel, published under the auspices of the Prospectors and Developers Association of Canada, with the proceeds going to Mining Matters, the Association's charitable education group.

Michael Barnes, C. M., author of eleven other industry related books, will have published by General Store Publishing House of Renfrew, Ontario and available February 2008, in time for the 2008 PDAC Convention.

In this endeavour the author is mentored by Dr. Jim Franklin, former Chief Scientist, Natural Resources Canada and John Harvey former VP Exploration for Noranda. Both men are now consultants.

Main topics in the book include exploration funding trends, four chapters on the geosciences, equipment, production success, eight chapters on commodities- the metals, diamonds and uranium, exploration cycles and budgets, as well as an extensive bibliography and upwards of 200 images.
